Anywhere snakes are a nuisance

Snakes have always played an important role in helping maintain nature's ecological balance. Through predation, they help keep rodent and other pest populations under control, helping prevent the damage that can come from rodent and insect over-population.

Although valuable to our ecology, few people want snakes in their homes or where they work.

Now, thanks to Snake Guard, capturing and removing snakes can be done safely and humanely.

Snake Guard Snake Traps come with a specially formulated glue that humanely, yet securely immobilizes the snake, allowing for safe removal.

Always use extreme caution as trapped snakes may still be harmful. To help ensure your safety, please read and follow the instructions and precautions provided with the snake traps.

To release the snake, simply pour liberal amounts of vegetable oil on the snake and on the glue around the snake. This neutralizes the glue, allowing the snake to go free at the desired release location. After the snake is free, simply bag up and dispose of the 100% biodegradable trap. Do not attempt to reuse the traps.
